Introduction

These words had some meaning in ancient times – at a time when women had high status equal to that of men in their family as well as in society. These are only words to actually think about worship are very far from likelihood society and women comprising a less privileged sector of society. Indian women are theoretically empowered – physically, mentally, economically and politically. Women from poorer groups are still facing exploitation and discrimination. Role played by women in national movements was a big support because of which the freedom movement became a success, things have not changed. The government and states are taking several initiatives for over all development, empowerment and welfare for girl children and for women. The government has passed many policies and programmes in this regard. But, in reality, the picture is different because today also women face insecurities in the forms of sexual assault, domestic violence, trafficking, exploitation and sexual abuse, and some problems like the problems of poverty, illiteracy and poor health facilities. But we have to awake and empower the women for the betterment of society,

Women and Empowerment: - The empowerment of women is gain greater equality with men in other words it is the process to challenge social restrictions and social norms for women which are barriers in the way of their development so that their confidence level can increase and they can also contribute to nation's development and participate in political, social and economic life at the local, regional and national level. Legal empowerment is the provision of an effective legal structure which is supportive of women's empowerment and political empowerment means a political system favoring the participation in, and control by women of, the political decision making process and its associated governance. Suggested measures for women's empowerment include: - Education, Capacity building and skill development, Participation development process, Granting autonomy.

India Women's empowerment: - Social and economic factor can supply to women's empowerment. The termination evaluation of the IFAD-supported Tamil Nadu Women's growth Project in India took place in. The project had aimed to bring about the social and economic betterment of women. The core mechanism was the women's self-help groups, which were set up with both financial and group of people action objectives. The appraisal noted that, at least in the latter phases, the mission acted not as just "a credit-cum-subsidy project, but as a genuine process of empowerment." The evaluation concluded that such empowerment lay in the interaction between the social and economic aspects of the project.

Objectives

The sole objective of this arrangement is to talk about the important role of community to build civilization, As far as India is concerned women are actively participate and causative in nation's enlargement but on other hand women do not benefit from equal category as men do, it's high time for society to change. As equipped mothers women give their blood and worry to their family from managing it emotionally till provided that financial hold up to their relations needless to say women are backbone of family as well as society. Corporate drama yet another role they boost financial system by making available employ to every section of the public.

Troubles Women's literacy

Education show business a very significant role in society's efficiency and efficiency, which are fundamental factor influencing the procedure of development. Education of women is very necessary for improvement in character, and their empowerment. Mahatma Gandhi stated "humanizing a man is humanizing a man as an individual while humanizing a woman is humanizing a family". The mainstream women are not in a situation to thrust themselves out of their social limitations but higher female literacy will be measured a sovereign remedy for lots of social and financial troubles. Education has been regard as the most essential factor to advancement anyone's socio-economy location. Edification has been declared as the basic right of every person being in the collective Declaration of Human Rights. Education is a basic right without regard to race, gender or any difference, financial or public. Women's literacy rate is lagging behind that of men and gender discrimination is a big barrier affecting this.

The literacy rate is rising but in technical edification it is still very poor since of insufficient central processing unit skill in women and the main reason of that are the high-priced costs of computer hardware and software, continuation and connectivity and time sex discrimination is the main motivation.

Reason for the disadvantaged women's literacy rate:

- Gender based dissimilarity.
- Social unfairness and economic development.
- Slim frame of mind.
- Small enrolment of girls in school.

Suggestion for upgrading:

- Augment extra donation to literacy campaign.
- Add to social responsiveness.
- Improved school enrolment.
- Add to in self-confidence and personality development.
- Change in instruction structure.
- extra occupation slanting
- Learning impartiality.
- Domestic savings and right of entry to acknowledgment.
- Induce girls to join more and more scientific.
- Specialized courses like in computers and other professional courses.
- Formulate accessible hostel capacity and complementary women teachers in girl's school.
- There is significant difference in literacy rates connecting the more wealthy metropolitan areas and the less wealthy rural areas.

Challenge

There are several challenges that are at present plague the issue of women's human rights in India. A few of this challenge are accessible below. While a lot of these are outmoded and quite basic issue faced across the country, these are causal causes to the overarching status of women in India. Targeting these issues will directly benefit the empowerment of women in India. While the country has grown from leaps and bounds since its independence where education is concerned, the gap between women and men is severe. While 81.74% of adult men are educated, only 69.76% of adult women are known to be literate in India. Not only is an illiterate women at the mercy of her husband or father, she also does not know that this is not the way of life for women across the world. Moreover, the norms of civilization that state that the man of the relations is the be-all and end-all of family decisions is gradually spoil the society of the country. The health and safety concerns of women are dominant for the welfare of a country, and are an important factor in gauge the empowerment of women in a country. However there is alarming concern where maternal healthcare is troubled.

Conclusion

Additional services like training, awareness raising workshops and other activities over and above microfinance programs that merely focus on financial services are also an important determinant of the degree of its impact on the empowerment process of women. They should have political, legal, economic and health awareness. They should have knowledge about support groups and positive attitudes towards life. They should get goals for future and strive to achieve them with courage. In the end I would like to conclude with the following words, "Women as the motherhood of the nation should be strong.
